DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aoki (US Pat. No. 6,011,533).
3. In regard to claims 1-7, Aoki discloses an image display device comprising: a liquid crystal panel (100) having a switching element for every pixel electrode (114), a scanning line driving circuit (102) for driving scanning lines of liquid crystal panel (100), a signal line driving circuit (110a and 110b) for driving signal lines of liquid crystal panel (100), a control circuit (20) for controlling driving liquid crystal panel (100), a video signal processing circuit (col. 1, lines 17-29), a producing circuit (32) for producing a phase difference in a second signal with respect to a phase of a first signal which is inputted to signal line driving circuit (110a and 110b) or to scanning line driving circuit (102). Aoki teaches that the phase-expanded signals that have been converted to a time length of data that is longer than the first sampling period, and outputs in parallel with different head positions of the pixel data in the phase-expanded signals on the basis of a reference clock signal and during this time, the sampling signal generation (106) may supply the sampling signals to the plurality of sampling with different head positions of the second sampling periods in the sampling signals. This insures that the pixels connected to each of the scan signal lines can be driven by a point-at-a time scanning. Aoki also teaches that the sampling signal generation (106) may comprise a shift register which outputs a signal later than a preceding signal by one cycle of a reference clock signal the $(3m-2)$ th output of the shift register within one horizontal scanning period of time can be input to the plurality of sampling, and the second sampling period of the sampling means can be N times one cycle of the reference clock signal (Fig. 16, col. 4, lines 14-42). As to claim 7, Aoki teaches that wherein said image display device is a projection type display (Fig. 28) including a projection light emitted from a lamp unit (1102) that is a light source and a transmission type of liquid crystal panel (col. 20, lines 7-43). Thus it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide a display device which is capable of reducing the influence which is exerted on the image display by the noises generated in the shift register circuit.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Sakaedani et al. and Nakamura et al. are made of record to show various types of LCD and the method of driving.
